CHARLES THOMAS JR.
Founder and CEO
RESULTS Mentoring

Charles Thomas Jr. began his outreach as a coach in Detroit's Police Athletic League where he saw students doing phenomenal on the field but struggling off, much like himself when he was younger. He started visiting players at their schools and in their homes to make sure chores and schoolwork were getting done, providing mentoring and tutoring services.

RESULTS Mentoring – Reaching Every Student Using Love, Training and Support – was born.

The program is constructed in three phases – in school student mentoring, a 6-week redirection camp and then mentoring and monitoring for life. "We never touch a life and walk away."

Since the program's inception, Charles has served more than 3,500 kids including his own son who likely will one day take over the program.

"Anyone who cares about the future has to care about young people."

KAMILIA K. LANDRUM
Executive Director
NAACP Detroit Branch

Growing up in Detroit, Kamilia K. Landrum observed many disparities among communities. This motivated her to focus her career on community service and youth engagement. In her role with the NAACP Detroit Branch, Landrum focuses on eliminating barriers in health care access, economic sustainability, criminal justice, education and civic engagement for underserved populations. She is committed to uplifting others through volunteerism and mentorship.

Landrum emphasizes the importance of leaving room for new opportunities and approaches her work with a strategic mindset. Landrum provides hope and guidance to those in need, striving to represent her community positively and inspire lasting change for a brighter future.

THE HONORABLE
JUDGE SHANNON A. HOLMES
Executive Presiding Judge
Specialty Courts
36th District Court

Judge Shannon A. Holmes has devoted her life to delivering justice with compassion. Holmes believes that addressing the root causes of crime is essential for community prosperity. In her role, she strives to see the individual behind the offense and then works to support his or her potential. "Instead of judging, I help guide them toward recovery," she explains.

Led by the mantra, "Not perfect, just chosen," Judge Holmes approaches her work with humility and determination, committed to making a positive difference in the lives of those who come before her. Passionate about providing second chances, Judge Holmes says hope is about striving forward despite obstacles.

DENISE BROOKS-WILLIAMS
Executive Vice President and CEO
Care Delivery Operations
Henry Ford Health Systems

Denise Brooks-Williams defines heroism as selflessly supporting those in need, a principle she applies in her daily life and work. Guided by the philosophy, "To whom much is given, much is required" (Luke 12:48), Brooks-Williams strives to spread hope and kindness throughout her community.

In her role with Henry Ford Health Systems, Brooks-Williams oversees market strategy, hospital operations, surgical services, and emergency departments. Her leadership ensures impactful, quality care that reflects her commitment to making a meaningful difference. While her role allows her to implement broad-reaching changes, it also comes with challenges—balancing numerous responsibilities and ensuring resources meet the community's needs. Brooks-Williams strives to meet these challenges each day by remaining focused on delivering compassionate and effective healthcare leadership.

DR. PORTIA LOCKETT
Founder and CEO
Azal Bennett Foundation

Dr. Portia Lockett defines a hero as someone who advocates selflessly for the well-being of others. It's what she has become for so many in the community in the wake of the loss of her son, Azal Benne. Dr. Lockett founded The Azal Benne Lockett Foundation in 2022 to support individuals in their grief, offering healing and guidance.

Driven by her faith, Dr. Lockett launched the "Permission To..." series during the foundation's first year. These events help people grieve, heal, and move forward after loss. The foundation also provides education, counseling referrals, financial aid, and support for funeral services via its website (azalbennelockettfoundation.org).

To Dr. Lockett, hope means trusting in the unseen and being a beacon of light for those in their darkest moments. Harnessing her own experience, she helps others navigate their pain and find their way forward.

WILBUR BRANDON HUGHES III
President & CEO
Detroit Memorial Park Cemetery

"A hero is often defined as someone who helps others without seeking personal reward." To those who know Wilbur Brandon Hughes III, President & CEO of Detroit Memorial Park Cemetery, it's a fitting description for the man who has maintained the final resting place of hundreds of Detroiters for almost four decades.

Hughes became CEO of Detroit Memorial Park Cemetery in 1988. It was seemingly predestined – his grandfather, Dr. Robert Greenidge, was an initial investor in the park and helped purchase the land for it in 1925 at a time when Black families were often excluded from other cemeteries. Dr. Greenidge later served as Board Director.

As the cemetery observes its centennial in 2025, Hughes proudly continues the family legacy of strong leadership. To future generations, he offers this advice: "The first generation often works hardest to ensure success. Each generation must strive to improve upon that foundation and always aim to achieve more than the last."

JERRY BOYKIN
Founder
We Are One Community Unity

Jerry Boykin and the I'm a Blessing family have been feeding the homeless in Detroit for 14 years – never missing a Wednesday.

His organization, We Are One Community Unity, is more than the sandwiches he shares: it's a calling. He lives by its motto – "I am a blessing."

"I know it's not me who's doing this. It's God who's doing this, giving me the team, the finances. I'm thankful."

The organization is predominantly self-funded. It's kept by alive by Jerry and others who help. Each time Jerry questions whether he can continue, someone in the community comes through and he is out there for another week. His goal is to address immediate needs, foster togetherness and make a lasting impact.

"Wednesdays are my best days of the week. We show people compassion and love, that's all they really need."

Fashion Entrepreneur & Pastor

Algernon Bartell believes in bringing back unity in the community. The 100 Men in Suits event, created by Bartell, is a fashionable parade held along Detroit's Historic Avenue of Fashion to celebrate style and mentor the men of tomorrow.

Inspired by The Met Gala, the event encourages men to dress their best, showcasing elegance and dispelling stereotypes. The annual event features a red carpet and judges selecting the best-dressed participant, who wins a custom suit from Bartell. He emphasizes mentoring younger men and believes that dressing well can boost confidence.

Alexa and Johnnie Turnage define a hero as someone committed to their mission, selflessly serving others and inspiring change. As co-founders of Black Tech Saturdays, the Turnages are committed to their own personal mission to empower Black individuals in the tech space. Through training and events, the duo aims to improve access to technology and close the racial wealth gap.

Alexa and Johnnie see hope as a powerful resource, believing the future belongs to the community. Their events, including the Detroit Digital Empowerment Summit, foster inclusion and innovation and are aimed at diversifying the tech industry. Coaching and mentoring are core values of their business, and they work regularly with emerging talent, offering guidance to help young people navigate their careers and make their mark on the industry.

As part of their efforts to provide access to technology, the Turnages have donated 500 laptops to community members. Their efforts exemplify a commitment to breaking down barriers and creating a more diverse and equitable tech ecosystem.

SOLOMON KINLOCH, JR.
Pastor, Triumph Church

"Service is the rent we pay for the space we occupy. That message was woven through my upbringing and by my pastor in my church home, New Bethel Baptist Church in Detroit. We're never here to just be. We're planted to be a blessing."

Under Pastor Kinloch's leadership, Triumph Church has seen extraordinary growth, now occupying eight campuses and hosting fourteen weekly services for more than 35,000 members (and counting).

With this growth, the church is able to exponentially increase the impact of its earthly mission, to give back to the community. This includes scholarships for teens, providing tens of thousands of free meals and free community workshops to promote healthy financial, mental, physical and spiritual living. During the COVID crisis, the church provided tablets to hundreds of students to address the digital divide.

"Whatever we expect from other people and from this place, we need to become a prototype of it ourselves."

Co-Founder, Auxano Capital

Jason Headen is dedicated to housing and community development in the city of Detroit. Since 2009, Headen has focused on affordable housing and revitalization. His passion for housing stems from personal hardship—his family lost its home when he was six years old, igniting his drive to create stability for others.

As part of their commitment to uplifting the community, Headen and a partner acquired an 8,000-square-foot commercial building in their childhood neighborhood in 2019. Looking forward, he aims to address Detroit's housing shortage by expanding affordable homeownership and developing multi-family housing that fosters inclusivity.

Inspired by Nipsey Hussle's motto, "The marathon continues," Headen remains focused on long-term, sustainable change. He's dedicated to helping reshape Detroit's landscape and providing families a place to call home.

THE JAMES H. COLE LEGACY FOUNDATION

Making a difference every day.

The James H. Cole Legacy Foundation's mission is to provide opportunities for economic empowerment, assist underserved children and schools, and support people who serve to make Detroit a great place to live. Every year, the Foundation highlights iconic heroes who go the extra mile to make a difference in the community. The individuals featured in this year's calendar truly take this mission to heart.

From teaching the community the technology of tomorrow, to serving food to the homeless, to helping those who are less fortunate, these individuals are real heroes, and we thank them for their daily dedication to serving their community members.

We're proud to honor these 2025 Detroit heroes. As our heroes have offered their support, so have we. We're serving our community through our Legacy Foundation and the Stevie Award winning "Love Thy Neighbor" initiative. We've partnered with other local nonprofit organizations to do the following:

- Reward students during the back to school season with backpacks, school writing and reading supplies to ensure success within the Detroit Public School systems.
- Collect and donate toys for a Christmas drive for children at a local Detroit homeless shelter.
- Curate a relief effort through which 500 food donation boxes were distributed to the community, including several nonprofit organizations and local neighbors of our W. Grand Blvd. location.

Each of the individuals featured in this year's calendar has been chosen because of the impact he or she has made on the community. They are the embodiment of Heroes and of Hope, sharing their passions and talents to enrich our world and improve our society. They make a difference each day, and we thank them.
